CALLING ALL LADIES

Here at energie Banbury we are opening an exciting new Women's only zone complete with a fully staffed circuit style programme. Unlike other gyms our programme uses body and free weight exercises for 30 minutes of challenging, varied but fun workouts. By using free weights rather than resistance machines it improves posture and requires more muscle groups to work -

More Muscle Groups Working = More Fat Being Burnt!

The circuit is changed every month to stop mind and body getting bored. This in turn will challenge you in your own personal limits of fitness ensuring the best results. With a very hands on approach we will be supporting you on every step of your journey to maximise weight loss, improve health and fitness and above all increase self esteem to build -

Empowered Women!

Alongside the circuit we offer a unique 6 week empower programme, offering a full money back guarantee if results are not seen. You will also have access to the fully equipped mixed gym with all the latest cardio and weight equipment should you have more energy to burn. Our studio also runs classes including the ever popular legs, bums & tums and aerobics.

There are no restrictions on ability, goals, size or levels of fitness. All we ask is that you are over the age of 16. Your achievements are our goals so come along and meet the team and take part in a free circuit or class.

With our money back guarantee there really is nothing to lose but the weight!

Academy land housing plan set to be approved by council

SCHOOL TO SELL FIELD

By Samantha McGregor

PLANS to sell off school playing fields for housing and improved sports facilities look set to be approved.

Banbury AAT Academy, formerly The Banbury School Trust, has submitted outline plans to Cherwell District Council to build 44 properties, an all-weather astroturf pitch with lighting, extension to the sports hall and 13ft outdoor climbing wall at its Ruskin Road site.

Cherwell's officers have recommended the plans are approved when they are discussed by its planning committee today.

In a report, the school said it had no choice but to sell the acre of land after £17m of funding was withdrawn by the Government's Building Schools for the Future programme.

Banbury AAT Academy had been identified as one of four schools in the county most in need of refurbishment.

A report to councillors, prepared by Framptons Planning Consultants, said: "With the withdrawal of this funding under the Building Schools for the Future programme, the school has been left with no realistic means - within the foreseeable future - to secure capital funding to carry out much-needed improvement projects."

The land is at the rear of Springfield Avenue, near retirement flats at Stanbridge House.

No details of the type or size of the homes have been included in the outline plan, but Cherwell's housing officer said 30 per cent should be affordable housing.

As part of the project, the current rugby and football pitches would be realigned and a new cricket square and athletics track relocated.

Chiltern tops punctual list

■ OXON: Chiltern Railways is the most punctual rail operator in the UK.

Network Rail said 86.3 per cent of trains were on time against the national average of 68.1 per cent in the last four weeks.

It is the fifth period in a row the rail firm, which operates the London to Birmingham line through Banbury, topped the rankings. Operators First Great Western and CrossCountry scored 69.7 per cent and 46.8 per cent respectively.

New funeral director plan

■ BANBURY: Plans to turn a former children's clothing shop into a funeral directors should be approved despite objections, a council planning officer has said.

Cherwell District Council's Shona King recommended councillors approve the plan for 20 Horton View, Easington, formerly Letto Twinkle Boutique.

Seven letters and a 16-signature petition opposed the plan, with concerns over parking and its "appropriateness" for the area.

Banbury Town Council said it was concerned it would lead to more parking at Horton View Sports Ground.

But applicant Peter Jordan said the business would have enough parking and customers and staff would respect the ground's private parking. Councillors will consider the plan today.

Secondary's elite course offers skills and learning Academy to create future footballers

Rufus Brevett, centre, takes training at North Oxfordshire Academy

TALENTED footballers are to be given the chance to excel at the game and gain qualifications in a new course.

North Oxfordshire Academy, in Drayton Road, Banbury, has launched a new course specialising in football for post-16 pupils, which it says is the first of its kind in Oxfordshire.

It will be run by former professional footballer Rufus Brevett, who currently coaches the academy's football teams.

But the Elite Football Academy Programme will give students a chance to take the sport to a new level.

The two-year course, which starts this September, is designed to nurture sporting talent and give pupils the chance to study A-Levels, BTEC or other qualifications alongside it.

Mr Brevett, who played in the Premier

By Samantha McGregor

League with Fulham and West Ham United, and ended his career at Oxford United, said: "I am very pleased to have this opportunity to contribute to the development of talented young people.

"The academy is launching this programme because, too often, footballers leave school without a broad set of qualifications.

"It aims to give those aspiring to a career in sport an opportunity to develop a wide range of qualifications and skills which will enhance their chances of a career in football but will also stand them in good stead to pursue successful careers outside of football.

"Our students will leave us with a good education, whether in the form of A-Levels, BTECs or an FA coaching qualification."

Trials will be held at the school on Wednesday from 1pm.

Successful candidates will receive daily performance training and mentoring, advice on how to develop their careers and gain exposure to professional clubs and scouts, as well as the chance to play in weekly fixtures.

A new elite squad will be set up which will compete in county and national competitions.

North Oxfordshire Academy Principal Sara Billins said: "We are delighted to launch the new Elite Programme this year.

"It will develop well-rounded young sportspeople with a number of exciting options for their future careers."

Oxford United offer an elite programme, but students are not able to study A-Levels.

For more details or to book a trial call the academy on 01295 224300.

Test centre stays

■ BANBURY: A driving test centre in the town will not shut, bosses announced last week.

The future of the West Bar Street facility was uncertain after the centre's lease ran out on March 31.

But a Driving Standards Agency spokesman confirmed the lease had been renewed for another five years.

He said: "We have agreed a five-year lease to remain on the premises. Negotiations have concluded and I can confirm we will be staying."

Rumours that it would shut down were raised in December after the Driving Standards Agency refused to confirm or deny future plans.

Store broken into

■ BANBURY: Police are hunting burglars who stole an undisclosed amount of cash, alcohol and cigarettes from Acorn Stores.

They entered the store in Orchard Way via the roof between 9pm on Saturday, April 6, and 8am on Sunday, April 7.

Extra locomotive

■ N OXON: Chiltern Railways is introducing an extra locomotive-powered silver train on London-Birmingham services via Banbury from May, allowing the Class 168 Clubman diesel units to be sent to be smartened up.

Changes to bus services

BUS services in North Oxfordshire have changed after a review of routes.

A new service, the 504, will connect Hornton and Horley to Banbury on Thursdays to take shoppers to the town's market, and the 488 between Chipping Norton and Banbury will have extra early morning and early evening journeys added between Milcombe and Banbury.

An extra early evening

Banbury to Steeple Aston service will be added on route S4 and an extra Saturday morning journey from Deddington to Bicester will run on route 81.

Other subsidised routes where current service levels will be maintained are: B1, B2, B5, B7 and B10 Banbury town services; 90 Upper Heyford-Banbury; 94 Otmoor-Bicester-Oxford; 55 Friday evening services to Ambrosden and Arcott.

Principal excited as secondary to get tie-in to aerospace industry

Academy's over the moon at space link

Banbury Aspirations Academy District executive principal Dr Fiona Hammans

THE country's first 'space school' has been given the go-ahead – and it will be in North Oxfordshire.

Aspirations Academy Trust, which runs Banbury Academy and primaries Harriers Ground and Dashwood, has been given Department for Education permission to open Space Studio Banbury on the Banbury Academy site in September 2014.

It will be part of the Government's studio schools programme, which has seen 16 schools for 14- to 18-year-olds open, offering a mixture of academic and vocational skills linked to paid work experience.

The trust is hoping to open a second space school at Harwell Oxford for September 2015.

Dr Fiona Hammans, executive principal for Banbury Aspirations Academy District, said the school would exploit links with the National Space Centre and National Space Academy, and would have a strong focus on science and maths.

By Fran Bardsley

She said: "It's about working with employers directly and giving youngsters in Banbury a chance to get a job in one of the fastest growing industries in the UK.

"It's about getting our youngsters into employment, but with a really strong education."

In September 2014, the school will take up to 75 children in Year 10 and a further 75 in Year 12, rising to a total of 300 pupils.

The school day will be significantly different from a conventional secondary, starting at 8am or 8.30am and finishing at 4.30pm to 5pm. By Year 12, pupils will be spending two days a week in paid work.

And they will be at school 44 or 45 weeks of the year, compared to about 39 weeks.

Classes will not be academically selective, but applicants will take a numeracy test to ensure the school has a broad representation of children with different levels of ability.

Instead of shirt and tie, the uniform is likely to be polo shirt and chino trousers.

Pupils will study English, a humanity and a language as well as science and maths, and will take GCSEs and A-Levels alongside vocational and professional qualifications.

Dr Hammans said: "Inevitably in the first few years, youngsters from Banbury will have an advantage because it will be on their doorstep, but we anticipate it would have a much wider reach."

Employers backing the school include Kraft, Dematic and Rational Aviation.

Dr Hammans added: "There is nothing like this in the UK. This will put Banbury on the map."

Capt Apos Katrantzis, of Rational Aviation, said: "We are over the moon to hear that the launch of our Space Studio is a go.

"Young people will have an excellent opportunity to acquire the relevant skills and the lifelong passion that characterises everyone involved in the aerospace sector."

Burglar jailed for break-ins

■ BANBURY: Adam Sherry, 26, was jailed for six months last week after he admitted three burglaries, handling stolen goods and attempted burglary.

Sherry, of Bretch Hill, targeted sheds, garages and outhouses in villages near Banbury over the Christmas period, police said.

Sgt Richard Smith said there were 30 break-ins over the period and police launched Operation Jetty to catch the culprit.

Among the items stolen were a leaf blower, compressor and bicycle. Sherry was sentenced at Oxford Crown Court on Thursday, April 4.

Police urged people to mark tools and equipment with their postcode.

Resignation means ballot

■ HOOK NORTON: A by-election will be held for Hook Norton ward on Cherwell District Council after Tory member Victoria Irvine stepped down because of family commitments.

The poll will be held on Thursday, May 2, the same day as elections for Oxfordshire County Council.

Applications for proxy votes must be received by Wednesday, April 24.

Neighbours oppose plans for homes

Hockey pitches, netball and tennis courts would be resurfaced. The sports hall would be extended and a fitness suite and new changing facilities built.

Nearby residents have opposed the plans on the grounds of increased traffic, noise and light pollution, loss of playing field and concerns about property values.

Twenty letters were received by the council, plus a petition with 28 signatures.

Maggie Williams, 64, of Stanbridge House, said residents would be unable to use their gardens or open windows if the plans went ahead because of building work.

She said: "I have got terminal cancer and I don't want to spend my remaining years on a building site."

Banbury Town Council had no objections, but wants to see measures to protect homes from light pollution, and no-waiting restrictions imposed on Ruskin Road.

The plans have been supported by Oxfordshire Playing Fields Association. It said: "We consider that this application seeks to improve existing facilities and provide new ones.

"We are also supportive of the fact that the new facilities will enable there to be an increased number of playing pitch agreements, and particularly endorse the provision of a formal community use agreement."

The plans were originally submitted last year, but withdrawn.

Appeal for a spring clean

Cherwell District Council will provide equipment like bags and litter-pickers for this month's volunteer clean-up.

Almost 40 groups are taking part from areas including Banbury.

The campaign has collected more than 30 tonnes since 2004. To take part email gabi.kaiser@cherwell-dc.gov.uk or call 01295 221962.

Getting a snapshot of Artweeks 2013

Photographer Jane Stillwell

AS almost 1,000 artists prepare to open their doors to the public for Oxfordshire Artweeks, photographer Jane Stillwell has gone behind the scenes to discover what inspires some of the painters, sculptors, designers and potters taking part – And was surprised at what she found. Debbie Waite reports

FROM marmalade-making to trampolining, Jane Stillwell's Artweeks Taster exhibition is a light-hearted look at what inspires some of the North Oxfordshire artists taking part in this year's Artweeks festival.

Mrs Stillwell, from Great Rollright, said: "I took my camera out into the villages around Banbury and Chipping Norton to discover the activities that provide the inspiration for our local designer-makers."

"All the artists were delighted to be involved – although taking photos on the hoof was quite a challenge at times."

"I photographed over 40 local artists in their own environments and when I went to meet many of them I didn't know what to expect."

"I hadn't met many of them before and then, from a quick chat, had to capture their passion and inspiration with a sense of fun and that twinkle in their eye."

As a result, artists are captured doing everything from riding a hobby horse to hugging trees.

Artweeks is Oxfordshire's largest visual arts festival, a three-week celebration in May each year of the county's artistic and creative talent, and the UK's oldest and biggest Open Studios event.

Almost 1,000 artists open their studios and welcome the public to see their creations and watch them work.

And last year approximately 100,000 people visited nearly 500 exhibitions and events across the county. All exhibitions are free.

Oxfordshire Artweeks 2013 will run from May 4-27 and is organised into three geographical areas.

These are Oxford Exhibitions: May 4-12; South Oxfordshire Exhibitions: May 11-19; and North Oxfordshire Exhibitions: May 18-27.

Jane Stillwell's Artweeks Taster exhibition is at Chipping Norton Theatre from May 4-16.

Pauline Nolan and Wendy Todd are exhibiting together this year, with an acrylic and embroidery collection called Fantasy and Fabrication at Wendy's garden studio in Churchill and were inspired by one of the garden's 'residents'.

Pauline, 60, said: "When Jane Stillwell asked to photograph us we chose the hobby horse in Wendy's garden to pose with because it is fun and that's what we think our exhibition is too. This is my first time and Wendy's second Artweeks and we are very excited about taking part. We haven't actually seen the photograph yet, but are very much looking forward to going along as soon as the exhibition opens."

When she's not making ceramic and glasswork, Sally Lyon, 46, can often be found bouncing away happily on her five-year-old son Joe's trampoline. She said: "This will be my fourth Artweeks and when Sally said she wanted to photograph me doing something fun, I jumped on the trampoline and before I knew it she had snapped away."

"Artweeks is a great scheme and I get a lot of enjoyment out of people coming along, looking at my work and telling me what they think of it. This has been a hobby while Joe has been small, but now he is going to school I want to expand and I'm hoping Artweeks can also help with that."

Susan Frater and Kate Wilson are exhibiting their work at the new Winebear fine wine shop in Chipping Norton and decided to put themselves on display too – in the shop window.

Mrs Frater, 42, a mum-of-two and drama teacher at Blessed George Napier School in Banbury, said: "When Jane took our picture from outside, people started to stop to see what was going on, which was quite amusing."

The women have called their exhibition Fragments. Mrs Frater explained: "Both of us have children, I have two and Kate has four, and I create my hand-cast pewter jewellery and Jane paints in the fragments of time we have available to us."

Crabby Taylor from Chipping Norton is a Raqu ceramicist which means that after creating her beautiful pots she leaves them to smoulder in a dustbin for several days. When she's not creating pots she can be found working behind the bar at Chipping Norton Theatre.

She said: "I have been involved in Artweeks for 14 years now and enjoy the diverse mix of artists who take part. Art, for me, should be fun."

Primary school places decided

■ OXON: Families have been finding out this week where their children will be going to primary school in September

Oxfordshire County Council education cabinet member Melinda Tilley, pictured, said she was confident parents would be notified on time, following problems last year with the online application system.

Last year, about 6,500 families who applied for school places were left in the dark after software designed and operated by Capita One failed to confirm receipt of online applications.

Emails were not sent out and people had to wait for written confirmation to arrive through the post.

Parents were due to be informed by email on Tuesday if they applied online, and letters were posted first-class to all other applicants.

The council has received more than 7,300 applications for 8,000 places countywide.

Pair getting set to impress at Chelsea

Hamish Mackie and Liz Nicholson are on their way to the Chelsea Flower Show

DESIGNERS, plant-lovers and sculptors across North Oxfordshire are gearing up for their gardening Mecca.

The county's greatest gardeners are pulling together their designs for the RHS Chelsea Flower Show next month.

The world's most prestigious flower show, in the grounds of the Royal Hospital Chelsea, is celebrating its centenary.

Some 12 county exhibitors will attend the show between May 21

By Katriona Ormiston and Tom Burrows and May 25, which is set to attract 150,000 visitors.

Hook Norton wildlife sculptor Hamish Mackie is putting the finishing touches to his bronze and silver creatures.

The 39-year-old said: "I'm really looking forward to it. At Chelsea, you see the crème de la crème of the gardening world and watching all the gardens spring up is amazing.

"I went to Africa so I have been sculpting animals like leopards and cheetahs, and I also have a life-sized camel from a trip to Dubai."

North Aston garden designer Liz Nicholson, 46, said: "I am really looking forward to it. Last year I was there building a garden for someone else so it is great to be able to build my own.

"The garden has a nod to the past in the design but the material of galvanised metal shows a hint of the future."

Aluminium company nearing anniversary

Hi-tech firm reaps legacy of 'the Ally'

By Chris Koenig

FOR decades aluminium was to Banbury what cars and pressed steel were to Oxford, with the Canadian-owned Alcan factory in Southam Road – or 'the Ally' as it was colloquially called – employing 5,000 people at its height.

The arrival of Northern Aluminium (as it was then) in 1931 rocketed Banbury into the modern age, according to Oxford University tutor Margaret Stacey, writing in her 1950s social survey: Tradition and Change: A Study of Banbury.

Until then that part of the county, sometimes referred to as Banburyshire, was in a sorry state with what few industries that existed at all being very old fashioned.

But just as workers flocked to William Morris's car factory in Oxford from all parts of the country, so they did to Banbury, often trekking hundreds of miles and sleeping rough in hedgerows on the way.

But Banbury did not win the factory without a fight. The landowners of the 16-hectare site wanted £12,000; the Canadians would pay no more than £10,000. Neither would budge and it looked like stalemate until, that is, the difference was raised by public subscription.

With such a history, it is cheering to see a descendant of Alcan still flourishes in Banbury, drawing on skills nurtured there long ago.

When Alcan closed its research centre, across the road from the splendid Art Deco gate houses of the works in 2003, the spirit of innovation that it had fostered lived on in the shape of new company Innoval Technology.

This is now a leading consultancy in the global aluminium industry, employing 26 engineers and scientists and still looking for more.

Innoval managing director Tom Farley, who originally joined Alcan in 1989, explained: "During the 1990s Alcan's Banbury laboratory was one of the top three aluminium technical centres in the world. In 2002 Alcan decided to close the Banbury laboratory but wanted to retain the expertise of 44 senior staff.

"It wanted all these staff to move to other technical centres in Switzerland and Canada. Alcan recognised that not everyone would want to move country and so supported the option for some employees to start their own company in

Innoval Technology managing director Tom Farley

Banbury. That company, Innoval Technology, was formed in May 2003 and 25 ex-Alcan employees joined the company at the start.

"Innoval was 100 per cent owned by its employees and started with a large and tapering contract from Alcan. Understandably this contract came with significant trading restrictions – for example, no work was allowed for other aluminium companies for several years. Innoval's challenge was to grow new business to counter the tapering contract.

"Innoval has been successful in growing new business with more than 300 companies worldwide, working for aluminium rolling companies, extrusion companies, end users of aluminium sheet and extrusion and also with investors in the industry."

Today Innoval still numbers 20 of those original engineers from Alcan among its staff, although Dr Farley notes that little of the aluminium industry is based in the UK anymore. Now, more than 80 per cent of its revenue comes from overseas.

What is clear is that in a fast-developing industry such as aluminium, outsourcing makes sense – and that is where Innoval comes into its own. The salient point here is that large companies, be they in the automotive industry, or aerospace, or perhaps soft drink can manufacturers, need frequent access to a wide range of skills from experts in the field – but they don't need them all the time.

And that makes for exciting times for Innoval. Last year the consultancy was bought up by Italian giant Danieli, one of the world's biggest suppliers of plant and equipment to the metals industry, thereby giving it far greater clout worldwide.

Dr Farley said: "It was a good move and in no way impairs our independence as a consultancy."

He added: "These are exciting times too for the industry as a whole. For years it has seemed the automotive industry would change over to using aluminium instead of steel, but now it is really happening."

"Many of the premium automotive manufacturers in Europe will utilise aluminium in future vehicle design in the drive to improve fuel economy."

Over the past seven years Innoval has trained 350 people from 33 different countries. It will have much to celebrate on its 10th birthday: May day this year.

It remains a prime example of innovation remaining at home even when the industry goes elsewhere.

Firm blames fuel price Passengers facing rise in bus fares

By Mark Taylor

BUS passengers are facing another annual inflation-busting fare hike.

Stagecoach has announced plans to increase ticket prices later this month with some daily tickets hiked by as much as 11.5 per cent.

This year's average rise is three per cent, while last year the firm raised prices by an overall five per cent.

This year's three per cent average rise – which comes into force on April 28 – is the second year in a row prices have gone up more than inflation.

Currently the consumer price index measure of inflation, which includes fuel prices, is 2.7 per cent. This time last year it was three per cent.

Stagecoach blamed the fare increases on rising costs of fuel, spare parts, and the running of its depots.

The cost of a Banbury dayrider has gone up from £2.80 to £2.90 for adults, and from £1.80 to £1.90 for children.

Students and young people have been hit hardest of all as the cost of a term ticket will rise 11.5 per cent from £78 to £87.

An annual term ticket will go from £247 to £270, a rise of 9.3 per cent.

Hugh Jaeger, chairman of Bus Users UK Oxford Group, said it was a tough time for bus companies following the collapse of two bus companies last year.

Brackley-based Jeffs Coaches, which served students in the Bicester and Banbury area, and Witney firm RH Transport, which also ran school buses, both went under.

Mr Jaeger said Government cuts to the fuel duty grant meant operators were losing money.

Hugh Jaeger

The Bus Service Operators' Grant, formerly the fuel duty rebate, dropped by 25 per cent last year, effectively meaning a 12p rise in the cost of a litre of diesel for bus companies.

He added: "Many of these increases are above inflation but fuel tax money was taken away from bus companies."

"We are finding that companies can no longer hold off putting prices up."

The managing director of Stagecoach Oxfordshire, Martin Sutton, said: "Unfortunately we have had to take some difficult decisions but we have done our best to keep fare changes to a minimum."

"We are facing continued rising costs in a number of areas of our business."

Last year Stagecoach reported operating profits of £237m.

Founder and boss Sir Brian Souter switched from chief executive to company chairman and pocketed £51m following a share pay-out last year.

According to the company accounts the windfall was on top of his £876,000-a-year salary package.

Prior to 2012 Stagecoach previously raised fares in Oxfordshire in July 2009.

Jailed over replica gun

■ BANBURY: A man has been jailed for possessing a replica firearm in a public place.

Nathan Hawkins, of The Causeway, Banbury, was handed a four-month sentence at Oxford Crown Court on Monday for waving an imitation handgun in the air in Banbury town centre.

On September 9 last year the 24-year-old was seen brandishing the replica while talking "aggressively" into a mobile phone.

He was due to stand trial for possession with intent to cause fear of violence, but pleaded guilty to the lesser charge on April 9.

Body found in pub toilet

■ CHIPPING NORTON: A man who was found dead in an Oxford pub has been formally identified.

Lee Cooper, 41, was found dead in a locked toilet of the Jericho Tavern on March 30.

The Chipping Norton resident was found at 9pm by a member of the public.

Police are treating the death as unexplained but not suspicious. An inquest by Oxfordshire Coroner's Court opened on April 9.

■ Danger continues at level crossing site

TERRIFIED drivers are risking their lives by stopping on a controversial level crossing because they don't trust the safety barriers, it was claimed.

An investigation by the Banbury Cake's sister paper the Oxford Mail found 24 drivers in just one hour came to a complete standstill on the crossing at Sandy Lane near Yarnton.

People living nearby have raised a series of safety concerns after the crossing was the site of a fatal crash earlier this year.

Tom Pizzey, 85, of Banbury, died when the car he was inside was hit by a freight train on January 2 this year.

Drivers risk becoming trapped by the barriers should a train approach in the distance and trigger the treadle which pulls the barriers down before they can pull away.

The problem came to light during a meeting between Network Rail representatives and Cherwell district councillors earlier this month.

During the 20-minute meeting beside the crossing, about six drivers were spotted stopping to peer down the railway line to make sure a train was not approaching.

Drivers slowing and stopping prompted Network Rail's level crossing manager for Thames Valley East Alan Durham to call,

From left, Alan Durham of Network Rail and councillors Alaric Rose and Michael Gibbard at the Sandy Lane level crossing

"Go on, drive on" in between answering the councillors' queries.

He said: "That is a huge problem. People do all sorts of crazy things on a level crossing, like reverse back."

Then during one hour on April 9, a reporter counted 24 cars out of 161 stopping completely on the crossing and another 11 slowing to a crawl.

Cherwell district councillor Alaric Rose, for Kidlington North, said: "Drivers are nervous considering what happened in January."

"They probably won't be completely reassured until the investigation is over.

"It is extremely dangerous – never drive on to a level crossing until the road is clear on the other side, and never stop on a crossing."

Network Rail last month revealed there had been 11 faults at the Sandy Lane level crossing near Yarnton in 2012, and 15 at nearby Yarnton Lane level crossing.

The details were only exposed after Mr Pizzey's death, which is being investigated by British Transport Police.

A ROGUE trader has been given more time to pay back part of an £800,000 haul he swindled from pensioners.

Mark Shepherd and Scott Jackson have already served jail sentences for targeting an elderly academic and a dementia sufferer in Oxford during a three-year scam.

At Oxford Crown Court on Tuesday, April 9, Shepherd, of The Beeches Caravan site, Chipping Norton, asked for more time to repay £50,000.

The 46-year-old was told in October last year he would face 18 months in jail if the money was not found within three months, but sought an extension earlier this year.

Daren Samat, defending, said his client had agreed with his sister they would sell her house to raise the money, but the sale had run into problems.

He said: "The difficulty has been in selling the property because it has a structural problem."

"It was hoped that the purchaser would repair it after buying the property, but now they want that to be done before."

Judge Patrick Eccles gave Shepherd until May 7 to provide evidence that the sale was taking place.

He also ordered him to pay £2,000 within 14 days "to show that he is serious about repaying".

In March 2004, the two men told an 85-year-old dementia sufferer that one of her chimneys was tilting and tiles needed replacing.

Over 15 months she paid them a total of £364,906 for work which should have cost just £30,000.

The following year, an 81-year-old retired Oxford University academic forked out £506,880 for building work which was worth no more than £55,000.

Motorcyclist injured in collision on A423

■ BANBURY: A motorcyclist was taken to hospital after a collision in North Oxfordshire.

Two cars, a motorbike and a cyclist were involved in the collision on the A423.

Police closed the road near the junction with Mollington Road, near Banbury, at 2pm on Saturday.

The motorcyclist was taken to hospital with non-life-threatening injuries.

The road reopened on Saturday afternoon.

In court over theft

■ BANBURY: Robyn Black, of East Street, Banbury, has been charged with fraud in relation to an alleged mobile phone theft in October 2012.

The 19-year-old is due to appear at Banbury Magistrates' Court on Wednesday.

WRVS anniversary

■ BANBURY: An event celebrating 75 years of the Women's Royal Voluntary Service will be held at the Banbury branch in Castle Street on Saturday. The 10am to 2pm event will include activities and demonstrations by police, NHS, council leaders and other groups which work with OAPs.

■ Mum-of-two taking part in cycle ride for Breast Cancer Care

Family motivation to support charity

Michelle Holdsworth

MICHELLE Holdsworth will be using pedal power at one of two major events aiming to raise thousands for a breast cancer charity.

The 34-year-old mum-of-two will take part in the Pink Ribbonride at Woodstock's Blenheim Palace on Sunday, May 12.

The 26- or 60-mile course takes place a day after a Pink Ribbonwalk at the West Oxfordshire stately home.

The aim is to raise over £50,000 for the Breast Cancer Care charity, which offers support for breast cancer sufferers and their families.

Mrs Holdsworth, 34, from Hook Norton, said: "I don't know exactly how it came to be that I signed up.

"A friend, Kelly Spooner, from my village, told me she wanted to do it and asked if I was interested – and before I knew it we were out on 7.30am cycle rides!"

Mum to Ellis, five, and Emily two, Mrs Holdsworth added: "I'm not a great cyclist, but I do enjoy it and I have wanted to help a cancer charity for some time as I have sadly a lot of family history with cancer.

By Debbie Waite

"My dad, Cledwyn Roberts, died from lung cancer 12 years ago, and a year after that my aunt died of ovarian cancer. My grandmother also had breast cancer.

"My brothers have both run the marathon for cancer charities, but there's no way I am fit enough for that.

"This will be a challenge – 26 miles is a long way and I'm sure the highlight will be the finish line.

"But I think it will give me a real sense of achievement and I hope to raise several hundred pounds for Breast Cancer Care."

The Pink Ribbonride is open to men and women and suitable for both new and experienced cyclists.

Both routes take participants through the stunning grounds of Blenheim Palace out into the surrounding villages.

Actress Amanda Mealing, who starred in the BBC1 drama Holby City, and has supported Breast Cancer Care since she was diagnosed with breast cancer 10 years ago, attended the Pink Ribbonride at Blenheim Palace in 2012.

She said: "I was diagnosed with breast cancer 24 hours after my second son was born, and just afterwards the breast cancer nurse gave me some pamphlets from Breast Cancer Care.

"From there on I have found the charity a wonderful support. Even if you have a really silly question that you would feel uncomfortable asking face to face, with Breast Cancer Care you have their forums, or you can ask by email or over the phone. It is just an amazing organisation."

To take part register at www.breastcancercare.org.uk/ribbonride

Registrations fees are £30 for the 26-mile course and £35 for the 60-mile course with a fundraising target of £100. People raising £150 will receive a free Team Breast Cancer Care cycling jersey.

Authors chip in for festival

Chipping Norton Literary Festival director Clare Mackintosh

BOOK lovers will be able to listen to big-name authors in small venues at Chipping Norton Literary Festival this week.

The event will take place across 10 venues in the town and feature 50 discussions, workshops and children's events.

Writers include Downton Abbey creator Julian Fellowes, Girl with a Pearl Earring author Tracy Chevalier and We Need to Talk About Kevin writer Lionel Shriver.

Author and evolutionary biologist Richard Dawkins and the comedians behind BBC Radio 4's I'm Sorry I Haven't a Clue will also discuss their latest books.

The festival runs from today until Sunday.

Festival director Clare Mackintosh said: "We have got 50 events, over four days at 10 different venues, so it will take over the whole town.

"People who come to Chipping Norton will get a real festival buzz from the event.

"We have got what perhaps you do not get at other festivals, which is a real sense of proximity to the authors. We bring big names to small venues.

"So, we have JJ Moyes at the back room of the Blue Boar, which has got 50 seats, but she normally speaks to audiences of hundreds.

"People will get a real opportunity to meet their favourite authors up close.

"These are very well known, very commercial authors who write books that a lot of us have scattered around the house. We will bring your bookshelf to life."

The event will also feature children's activities, including

Oxfordshire Play Bus visiting the town centre on Saturday and Sunday.

Organisers have also put on a real-life Where's Wally hunt, in which people will search the town for cardboard cutouts of the character.

This year's festival will have its line-up tweaked, after feedback from last year, so fewer events clash and workshops are longer and more in-depth.

Mrs Mackintosh said: "Chipping Norton is a great place to hold a literary festival.

"We have got an award-winning bookshop and theatre and we have got some fantastic writers who live in and around the area.

"What it does is bring all these things together to make for a fantastic festival."

Looks aren't enough for post-apocalyptic thriller

OBLIVION (12A, 125 minutes) Sci-Fi/Thriller/Action/Romance. Tom Cruise, Olga Kurylenko, Andrea Riseborough, Morgan Freeman, Nikolaj Coster-Waldau, Melissa Leo. Director: Joseph Kosinski.

IF PLANET Earth was decimated by a series of earthquakes and tsunamis, followed by an alien invasion designed to exterminate the pockets of human resistance, you'd stake money on Tom Cruise emerging unscathed from the melee.

The 50-year-old actor has survived three divorces, a risible Irish accent in Far & Away and the very public humiliation of leaping around on Oprah Winfrey's sofa with his box office cache and nice-guy reputation intact.

Cruise has repeatedly foregone stunt doubles to perform death-defying feats on camera, including clambering up the world's tallest skyscraper for the most recent Mission: Impossible and riding a motorcycle at high speed during a bull run for Knight & Day.

When extra-terrestrials demand "Take us to your leader", more than likely it will be Cruise charming the invaders into submission.

In Oblivion, a ponderous post-apocalyptic thriller based on the graphic novel by Joseph Kosinski and Arvid Nelson, Cruise is one of the last men standing after planet Earth is reduced to a radiation-poisoned wasteland by a pernicious race called Scavs.

Survivors have been evacuated to Titan, the largest moon of Saturn, leaving behind small teams to protect the giant machines that extract vital resources to power mankind's new home.

Drone maintenance officer Jack Harper (Cruise) and his partner, tech operator Victoria Olsen (Andrea Riseborough), are two weeks away from retirement on Titan when he rescues an astronaut (Olga Kurylenko) from a crashed space shuttle.

Olga Kurylenko and Tom Cruise in Oblivion

This gung-ho act, in direct violation of orders from controller Sally (Melissa Leo), brings the former Marine into contact with a grizzled resistance leader, Malcolm Beech (Morgan Freeman), and his right-hand man (Nikolaj Coster-Waldau).

"It's time to learn the truth," booms Malcolm, hinting at a convoluted conspiracy that provides Cruise with the perfect excuse to perform impressive acrobatics amid a blitzkrieg of expensive pyrotechnics and digital effects.

Oblivion looks stunning, especially on a giant IMAX screen, with a lightly colour-bleached palette that accentuates cold metal greys and blues. Director Kosinski, who previously made TRON: Legacy, orchestrates the pivotal action sequences with breathless aplomb, including an aerial chase in a spacecraft.

Looks aren't everything, though, and the script's philosophical musings about humanity and self-sacrifice are almost as flimsy as the central love triangle that fails to ignite the emotional afterburners.

Cruise's portentous voiceover is matched by an orchestral score peppered with discordant rumbles that conjure fonder memories of Hans Zimmer's work on the Dark Knight trilogy and Inception.

Freeman is wasted in a malnourished supporting role, while Riseborough and Kurylenko shed perfectly shaped tears on cue.

We're not so easily moved.

Keeper pulls off a string of stops to ensure United get back to winning ways after a run of defeats

Carter saves the day for Puritans

GOALKEEPER Warren Carter was the hero as Banbury ended a run of three Evo-Stik Southern League Premier Division defeats with victory at the play-off contenders.

With seconds left, Jordan Parkes had the chance to score the winner, but Carter made a brilliant save from Jordan Parkes.

It completed a double for Edwin Stein's side, who thumped the Hertfordshire outfit 4-0 at the Spencer Stadium in November.

The visitors bossed the opening exchanges and it was no surprise when they went ahead.

The home side made a hash of a clearance and Adeyinka Talibi fired in

Hemel Hempstead (Pearce 79)	1
Banbury Utd (Talibi 15, Isaac 69)	2

from close range. Banbury then had a scare when Danny May broke clear, but he fired over.

Minutes later, Carter made a super stop to deny Danny May.

Kynan Isaac doubled Banbury's lead with 20 minutes to go when he slotted home.

David Pearce cut the deficit for Hemel to set up a nervous final 10 minutes, before Carter's heroics sealed victory. Banbury Utd: Carter, Cray, R Plowright, W Plowright, Blossom, Polk, Sc Bridges, Talibi, Skendi, Isaac, Hopkins. Subs: A Dumbleton, White, Collins, Sharif.

On Thursday, United – who played much of the game with nine men – had looked like recording a remarkable win, when they took a late lead in their visit to Arlesey Town.

But the hosts scored twice to pull off a 2-1 success.

Banbury winger Warren Plowright was sent off in the 28th minute for a foul.

Things got worse for the Puritans in the 57th minute when full back Luke Cray was red-carded. Drew Roberts scuffed the resultant penalty.

In the 79th minute Kynan Isaac put the visitors ahead.

But the hosts equalised a minute later through Chris Marsh's header.

Then in the third minute of injury time, Leon Hibbert struck the winner.

Your ruling planet Mars can be your best friend and your enemy all at the same time. Firstly you've taken on more than you should, but secondly you have the energy to complete all that is now on your plate. Travel and even overseas links help you to boost your income and make your future a more secure one. Give me a call now to hear why you must cut short communication with that ex.

TAURUS

Apr 20-May 20

There is so much temptation around you at the moment that it must be difficult for you to move without fear of either missing out or over indulging. To get the balance right you need to think and plan what you want, before you are asked. It's sure to make choosing far easier. Cancelled family plans are for a bigger reason than is at first apparent. Phone now for a message from Saturn.

0906 585 4361

GEMINI

May 21-Jun 20

People will be listening when you speak this week and your words can come back on you so try not to say anything which you don't really mean. It's all very well your comeback sounding good at the time, but not if what you say can come back to haunt you for years to come. Family news at the weekend gives you back some freedom. Phone now to hear who can't stop thinking about you.

0906 585 4362

CANCER

Jun 21-Jul 22

Relationships are sacred to you and to have your trust breached is unforgivable. This week though it is a relationship which comes with more to lose than is at stake. Let's hope the person concerned behaves, as you're not a sign which even the strongest signs in the zodiac should mess with this week. Playful offers are more serious than you think! Phone now, I have much to tell you.

0906 585 4363

LEO

Jul 23-Aug 22

You've been walked over and mistreated in the past, but from here on in you are not going to be suffering fools gladly. That doesn't mean your journey is going to be plain sailing this week, as you'll have to stand up to some pretty strong signs. Let's not forget you're a Leo though, so you'll have no problem standing your ground. Ring now to hear how a friend could soon turn into a lover.

0906 585 4364

VIRGO

Aug 23-Sep 22

Your chart is open to learning and this would be an excellent time for you to further your knowledge in a subject or to open yourself up to something new. Rumours which are circulated at this time may not be true, so be careful of getting caught up in something which you may end up getting the blame for starting. Give me a call now to hear how Mars favours a confessional weekend.

0906 585 4365

LIBRA

Sep 23-Oct 22

You've had so much to go through that I don't think you've even stopped to take a breath or ask yourself how you're feeling. You should though Libra, as it's time you gave yourself a pat on the back. You've come out the other side and a successful outcome is yours, as you should see for yourself by Friday. Ring me now to hear why it's a good time to break old habits.

0906 585 4366

SCORPIO

Oct 23-Nov 21

Where is that shy retiring character I saw at the beginning of the month? Gone! I know, and for good this time too. I don't like it when you allow yourself to be ruled and neither do you. New attractions in love are formed and, for some of you, existing ones are strengthened by Thursday. Phone me now to hear why you can afford to invest in more extravagant travel plans.

0906 585 4367

SAGITTARIUS

Nov 22-Dec 21

This is a really tempestuous week for relationships, but as long as you stick to what needs to be said, rather than firing negative comments with intent to harm then you'll be alright. The truth is, you are trying to protect your vulnerable side. Others can't see this of course, but by pairing up with those you know have your back you'll feel calm and collected. Ring now for a romantic revelation.

0906 585 4368

CAPRICORN

Dec 22-Jan 19

I know you're going to feel like doing what you want to do when you want to do it this week, but by sticking to arrangements and showing you can finish what you start you'll gain the respect you've been craving. Money you'll be forced to pay out on the home is worth the sacrifices which will come with it. Don't try to convince yourself otherwise. Phone now for strength and vision.

0906 585 4369

AQUARIUS

Jan 20-Feb 18

You've put yourself out so much for someone, and even though they don't seem to appreciate your efforts you can, and should, be proud of yourself. You've proven you do the right thing when placed in such a situation. Cash flow could be a problem and you may want to prioritise so that you don't miss out on the things you really want to do. Phone me so I can unload some of your secrets.

0906 585 4370

PISCES

Feb 19-Mar 20

You have a lot you need to organize this week if you are to be able to tick off your list of responsibilities, but just make sure you're not being used as a scapegoat for those who are too lazy to do things for themselves. Gambles with money can pay off in your favour if you can show you're worth the investment. Phone now to hear why love and travel work well for you.

Could you foster?

If you have a genuine interest in child development, have a spare room in your home and space in your life you could seriously consider becoming a foster carer.

You do not need any particular qualifications or background, it's more about your individual personality and qualities such as patience, understanding and commitment.

You can be single, married or living with someone. You can be a homeowner or a tenant. You can be working or unemployed. You can be from any religion, ethnic origin or sexuality.

People who foster vary as much as the children they look after, and we need all types of foster carers for all ages of children.

Support Workers

Oxford Area - Including Horspath, Wallingford, Didcot & Stonesfield

£15,379-£16,416 depending on experience

Increasing with sleep ins @ £27.41 extra per night, plus up to time and half at weekends and bank holidays.
Would you like a job that offers you the opportunity to make a real difference to people's lives, giving you a sense of achievement and job satisfaction?

We are looking for people who are good communicators, are open and approachable and help unlock potential in others.

We currently have a number of opportunities for individuals who wish to work directly with adults with autism, supporting them within their own homes and in the community. At the Stonesfield service you will be directly supporting a young man who can be challenging and require a high level of support to manage his anxieties. You will be providing assistance with day to day living activities, such as meal preparation, shopping, managing money, leisure activities and personal needs. Our service operates a rota system including early, evening and weekend shifts.

We can offer full time, part time (including school hours) and bank options plus we pay enhancements for weekend, bank holiday and night shifts. Experience is not necessary as full training is provided.
Drivers preferred but not essential

Hybrid Yaris adds a spark to commuting

By David Duffy

ONBOARD car computers can deliver a host of information — and some of it makes for pretty depressing reading.

A recent morning commute in a seriously powerful Porsche delivered the sobering news that my 14-mile journey had been achieved at a miserable average of 21mph.

A return evening commute along the same route, at the wheel of the Toyota Yaris Hybrid, displayed the only-slightly-less-depressing figure of 22mph.

Given that these speeds — easily achievable on a bicycle — are the day-to-day reality of modern motoring for many drivers, the desire for economy rather than power becomes much clearer.

And if that economy can be delivered by an engine that can cover at least some ground without emitting any polluting gases, then the attraction of so-called hybrid vehicles starts to make a little more sense.

Make no mistake, hybrid engines that combine both electric and petrol power, are advanced, complex and, needless to say, expensive pieces of kit.

So the price tag on the flagship model for Toyota's best-selling model in Europe is hefty.

But despite that, Toyota does not expect the French-built Yaris Hybrid to be a niche model, expecting it to claim a fifth of annual European Yaris sales.

What you get for your money is a cleverly packaged supermini which gives great fuel efficiency and low emissions, with no loss of cabin or loadspace.

The downsized hybrid system combines a re-engineered 1.5-litre petrol engine with a lighter, more compact electric motor and battery pack.

The complicated technology boils down to the potential for 70+mpg fuel consumption; no vehicle excise licence to pay and the ability to operate in all-electric mode, saving money at the pumps, with zero NOx, particulate or CO₂ tailpipe emissions.

On the road, the Yaris Hybrid is as neat, and nearly as nippy, as every other model in the range.

FLAGSHIP MODEL: The Yaris Hybrid is well equipped and has 70mpg consumption potential

Equipment levels are high across the range, with all models fitted with seven airbags, dual-zone air conditioning, vehicle stability control with traction control, selectable electric and eco-drive modes and automatic transmission.

The touch-sensitive screen on the centre console also includes a blue-lit 'hybrid energy monitor', which can show which elements of the petrol and electric system are delivering power.

It can also switch display to show fuel consumption, 'cruising range' remaining and that often-depressing read-out of average speed.

Simple checks could avoid MoT failures

RESEARCH from the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders indicates that about 1.5 million MoT failures each year could be avoided if motorists notify the dealer of simple problems with the vehicle before the annual roadworthiness test is carried out.

In the biggest campaign of its type, 5,545 manufacturer main dealers across the UK will be giving guidance to motorists on the simple pre-MoT visual checks they can carry out on their own car.

Taking just a 'Minute Or Two', the 10-step checklist takes vehicle owners through a series of quick-and-easy checks — from headlights and tyres to windscreen wipers and fluid levels.

By forewarning the dealership of any required work in advance of the MoT, motorists can then give their vehicle the best chance of passing the test first time around.

The full 'Minute Or Two' checklist can be viewed at www.passmymot.co.uk, where visitors can also use a garage finder tool to locate their nearest dealer.

Meanwhile, Citroën has released the first details of the new C4 Picasso, highlighting its larger boot, lower emissions and two large colour displays.

The sharply-styled model, which Citroën claims is the first compact MPV to offer the possibility to dip below the 100g/km threshold for free road tax.

A range of engines at the car's launch will include new Euro 6-compliant diesels with power outputs from 89bhp to 148bhp. Manual and automated manual gearboxes will also be available, with a traditional automatic transmission pencilled in for early 2014.

The highlights of the new engine line-up include the entry-level 89bhp e-HDi with 74mpg and just 98g/km of CO₂. Arguably even better is the 148bhp BlueHDi diesel, which only emits 110g/km of CO₂.
